City man pulled from river dies

A city man rescued from the Susquehanna River after jumping from the Hepburn Street Dam over the weekend has died.

Montour County Coroner Scott Lynn reported that Crist Stouffer, 55, of 424 W. Fourth St., passed away Monday.

Lynn said the cause of death could be attributed to multiple trauma injuries.

Stouffer reportedly leaped from a fish ladder at the dam early Saturday evening before being swept downstream, where he was rescued by South Williamsport Police Officer Jake Sommers and a bystander, Chris Lorson.

He was administered CPR and taken to Williamsport Regional Medical Center before being transferred to Geisinger in Danville.

Lynn listed time of death at 1:44 a.m. Monday.
