A 10-year-old girl from Tulsa drowned in a low-water dam behind a Delaware County water park on Saturday.

A spokesman with the Grand River Dam Authority (GRDA) says the girl and her family were swimming in a dam behind the Flint Creek Water Park when the girl was left unattended before going missing.

The GRDA says the girl was a non-swimmer, and the family began to search for her after realizing she was missing.

Around 2:40 p.m., the GRDA was notified and responded to the scene. The girl's body was recovered a short time later.

Her name has not yet been released.
